

How to Make Beaded Hoop Earrings

Step 1: Making the pearl bead dangle

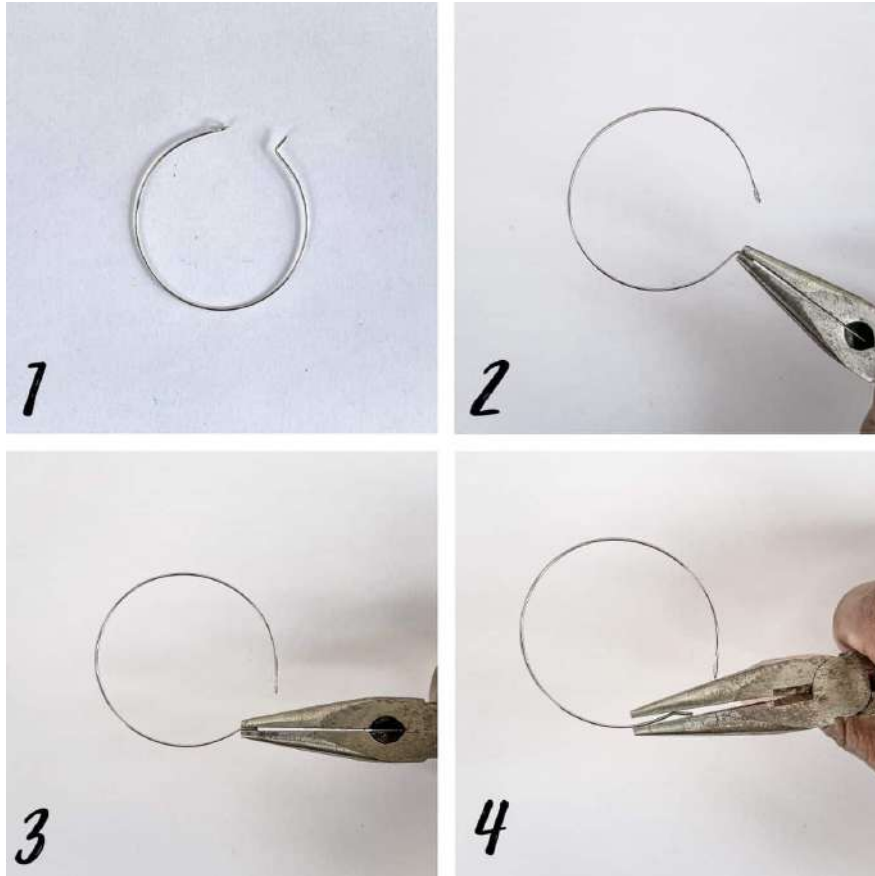

Start by make the pearl dangle that hang in the center of the beads row on each hoop.

1. To make the dangle, you will need 1 pearl bead, 1 turquoise crystal bead and one headpin for each side.
2. To begin, insert the 3mm turquoise bead into the headpin.
3. Next, insert the pearl bead.

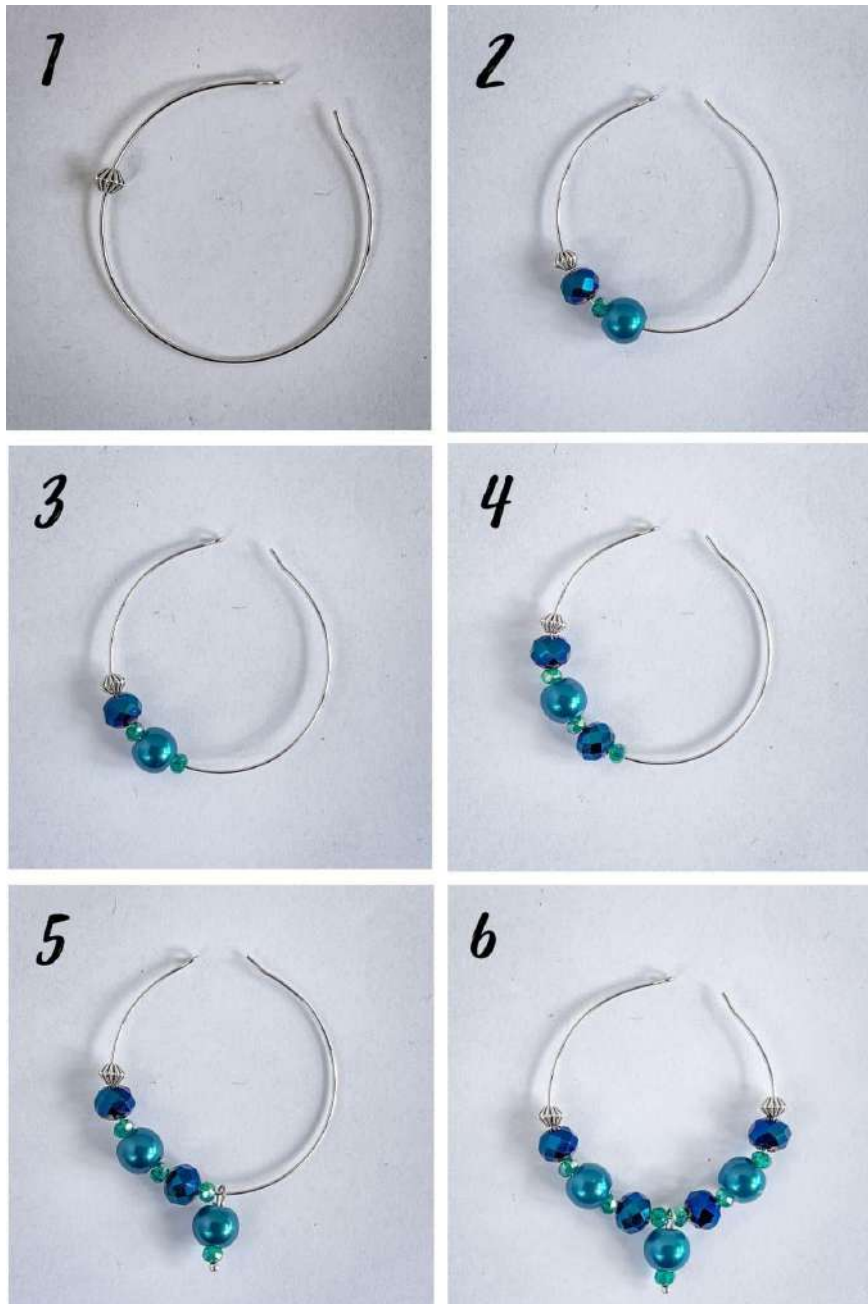

4. Push the beads to the end of the headpin. Holding the beads in place with one hand, bend the excess headpin to a 45 degrees angle with your fingers on the other hand. If your headpins are longer, trim off the excess wire (with wire cutters)
5. Using the round nose pliers, form a loop with the bent pin wire. Insert the end of the wire into the bead hole.
6. Set aside. Repeat the process to make another set of pearl bead dangle.

Step 2: Adjusting the earring hoops

1. Open the hoop earrings.
2. Using the flat nose plier, straighten the bent end at the edge of the hoop. Start by holding the bent end with the plier.
3. Gently pull it out to flatten it. Be careful not to distort the shape of the hoops.
4. Next, place a longer section of the hoop wire into the plier. Press the plier to further straighten the wire. The wire need not be perfectly straight, suffice if it is able to take in the smallest of the beads into the earrings.

Step 3: Assembling the blue beaded hoop earrings

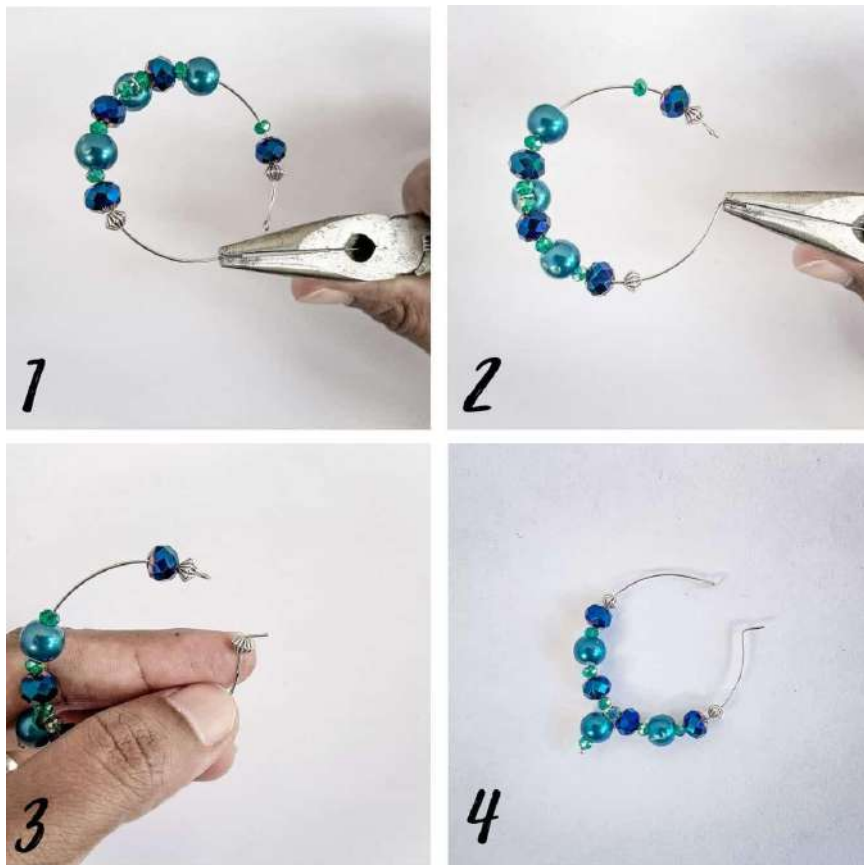

1. Insert the antique silver bead.
2. Next insert a metallic blue bead and a small turquoise bead. And then add a blue pearl bead.
3. Follow again with a small turquoise bead.
4. Repeat the step with a metallic bead and a turquoise bead.
5. Next, insert the pearl dangle prepared in step 1 above.
6. Mirror the order of the beads inserted before the dangle. Start with a small turquoise bead, followed by a blue metallic bead. Add another turquoise bead, followed by a blue pearl bead. Finally, add a turquoise bead again and then the metallic blue bead. Finish off the beaded hoop earring with the antique silver bead.

Step 4: Adjusting the bent end of the hoop earrings

- The final step in making the beaded hoop earrings is to make sure the un-looped end of the hoop is bent to at least 90 degrees angle. This will ensure the beads do not roll out of the hoop.
- Since the end was straightened in the earlier step to insert the beads, you need to bend it back to its original state.

1. Do this by holding the end with a flat nose plier.
2. Gently bend it to a 90 degrees angle.
3. To ensure the silver bead (which is the last bead in the row) is not able to pass through the bend, try to push it out. If it does, adjust the angle of the bend to a higher degree.
4. And that completes the first of the beaded hoop earrings pair. Repeat the steps to make the other side of the beaded hoop earrings pair.
